NO COMMUTATION FOR GUILTY ONES

Faculty of the University of Utah Declines to Reverse Its Action.

SUSPENDED STUDENTS MUST TAKE MEDICINE

Result Is That Five Are Eliminated From Today's Football Game.

After a discussion lasting nearly three hours, during which every phase of the matter was carefully considered, the faculty of the University of Utah denied the petition of 150 engineering students to commute the sentence of the eight men recently suspended for the cutting of a student's hair on election day, so that the suspended students might resume their work on Saturday instead of waiting until next Tuesday as the sentence originally provided.

It was learned that the final ballot denied the petition by a single vote, and that if all the professors who had declared themselves in favor of granting the petition had been able to re-main at the meeting the result would have been different. It is known also that Drs. Merrill and Bradford and Pro-fessors Lyman and Cummings were on the side of the students, while Profes-sors Marshall and Gibson were among those who fought the granting of the petition.

Captain Conville Talks.

Captain Conville of the football team addressed the engineers at a mass meeting which they held at noon Friday. He gave the views of the suspended men, five of whom were to have played in the big game with the team from the University of Wyoming today. He also explained that for him and most of the other members of the senior class a walk-out for three or four days could only result in failure to graduate this year, and would mean the loss of an entire year in their school career. Borquist, the man whose hair was cut for failure to comply with the action of the ergincering society declaring a holiday for last Tuesday, also spoke to the students. He explained that he did not realize that it was the sentiment of all the ergineers that school work was to be cut out on that day. He also admitted that he had made a mistake in bringing the matter to the attention of the discipline committee and promised that he would withdraw his complaint at the steerin meeting of the faculty which had been called for 4 o'clock.

After nonsidering the matter, the students appointed a committee for the purpose of drawing up a petition to After considering the matter, the students appointed a committee for the purpose of drawing up a petition to present to the faculty. In the petition, which was signed by more than 160 engineers, it was set forth that the complaint was to be withdrawn; that the students had already been sufficiently punished for their misdemeanor; that the presence of the suspended men was needed at the football game; that the petitioning students were sorry for any attitude of disrespect of which the faculty might consider them guilty, and that the preference would in no way be compromising their dignity in acting favorably on the petition.

After the adjournment of this meeting, the student body met and expressed the sent ment that the men be earnestly requested to come back and play the game. On second of the petition already sent to the faculty, however, no steps were siden to formally arge the

The factor originally provided for the suspension of the sentence during the time of the game, but as the students would be prevented from practice, the boys did not think it wise to at-tempt to play. What the final outcome will be remains to be seen.

Whether or not the engineers will take any further action in the matter, now that their potition has been denied, is a matter of uncertainty. One student said that if the entire bunch did not walk out they were "dubs" and "quitters" of the worst kind. Still others maintained that such an action could walk authors a vector to show the congain nothing, except to show the gen-eral disapproval of the faculty's ac-tion, and that on account of the altogether fair and reasonable stand taken by many of the members, he did not tayor the plan.

"The voting machine, giving it credit for all that the experts claim for it, is an insensous device, the product of the thought and energy of a high degree of genius. Such products of genius are generally complicated and of that character that only such a genius is theroughly acquainted with its application in producing results. So it is important that election boards under whose supervision the voting machine would be, should be very familiar with its operation at least, and the care and the caution that should at all times surround it during the conduct of such election should be safe and certain so that the election be held in accordance with the law and that each and every elector shall be able to express his will in the casting of his ballot."

The court then gives his deduction that in the present circumstances, it would be impossible either for election boards to learn how to teach the voters how to use the machine, or the electors he instructed sufficiently to enable them to operate it without assistance, and that therefore it would be impossible at this time to conduct an election properly by the use of the machine, hence the injunction must issue and the use of the machine be prohibited.

I got all mixed up, and I suppost I spoiled my ballot,' or, 'I started to vote a scratched ticket, but lost my head and decided to let it go straight anyway.'

Ex-Judge Olcott, who had represented Curtis in the trial, made a touching appeal for clemency on behalf of his client. In this appeal he was given the active aid of District Attorney Stimson, who informed the court that he believed justice would be served by suspending sentence in the case of Curtis. After justifying the clemency for Curtis, Justice Hough pronounced the sentence upon Morse.

There had been a murmur of approval and a faint attempt at appliause when sentence upon Curtis was suspended by the court, but it was suppressed by the attendants. When the fate of Morse was pronounced the court room was as still as a church, and the first sound to break in on the quietness was the sobs of the prisoner's wife and the hurried shuffle of feet as she was led away to an ante-room. Morse followed her, in charge of Marshal Henkel, in whose custody he had been paroled after the court had granted a stay of ten days in execution of the sentence. A moment later the crowd began to move slowly out of the court room. Few of them left the building, however, and when Curtis came out a free man with his wife leaning on his arm he was given a rousing cheer. The approving shouts followed him all the way down the long corridor, which was lined on either side by men and women. COAL FAMINE NOT BEING FEARED NOW

Inspector J. E. Pettit Says Outlook for Winter Is Most Encouraging.

STILL, THINKS IT BETTER TO LAY IN SUPPLY EARLY

Conditions Over the State Are Reported as Being Very Satisfactory.

There will be no coal famine this vinter, in the opinion of State Coal Mine Inspector J. E. Pettit, and there will be no serious shortage of cars, he thinks; but just the same it might be well to lay in your winter supply of fuel early and avoid taking any chances.

The mines of the state generally are in good condition, Mr. Pottit said yesterday, and are working most of the time, but on account of a scarcity of cars have to lay idle occasionally. This is fisually made up, however, by working on Sunday, he says.

Mr. Pettit bases his opinion that there will be no coal famine on the fact that the Pleasant Valley. Winter Quarters, Clear Creek and Independent mines have an increased output this year over last amounting to between 400 and 500 tons daily. Then, the Consolidated Fuel company, with headquarters in this city, is opening a new mine at Miller Creek with three heavy veins, one of which is twenty feet and each of the others about six feet in thickness, and all of excellent quality, which will begin to supply the market in two or three months. The company is now grading for a railway from Miller Creek to tap the Denver & Rio Grande railway near Price and afford an outlet for the coal from the new mines.
